"On the home stretch!"

Relander, Click

URI: http://hdl.handle.net/20.500.11867/9843
Date: 1954-09-25
Request a Copy: http://rightsstatements.org/vocab/NKC/1.0/

Abstract:
Relander is letting J. H. Gipson, president of Caxton Printers, know that he is on the home stretch on Drummers and Dreamers, but including some minor corrections, some made necessary by recent developments. Public interest is strong for the subject matter. Photographs may be substituted on his sculptures, since he's making process on them. Update on the Yakima Valley Museum, and his upcoming talk about the Wanapums, as well as other upcoming talks. He has pledges of help from his contacts that make him helpful the introduction of the book will be special, in time.

Description:
2 sheets 8.5 x 11 inch carbon copy of original, which was sent to recipient. Typed.

Show full item record

Files in this item

Name: REO-001-09-026.pdf Size: 233.1Kb Format: PDF Description: Correspondence

This item appears in the following Collection(s)
- Relander's Outgoing Correspondence

On the home stretch definition: the last part of a race or other activity. Learn more. We've been on this project for three months, but we're on the home stretch now. (Definition of “home stretch” from the Cambridge Academic Content Dictionary © Cambridge University Press). What is the pronunciation of home stretch? Browse. home rule. home run. Home Secretary. home shopping. on the home stretch. In the midst of the final portion of an activity, project, competition, etc. Likened to the straightaway at the end of a race. The bulk of the work is behind us now—we're on the home stretch now! See also: home, on, stretch. on the home 'straight'/stretch, approaching the end of a task, project, course, etc: Ten exams done and two more to do — you're on the home straight now. ♢ I never thought the prison sentence would end, but I feel I'm on the home straight now. This refers to the last part of a horse race when the horses are approaching the finishing line. An Assault on the Dark Portal quest. Rewards. Added in World of Warcraft: Warlords of Draenor. Always up to date with the latest patch. If they weren't angry before, they sure are now. We won't survive a minute up on top o' this tank! Let's join up with the rest and get out of here!! Completion. Against all odds, here we stand. Still alive, an entire army on our heels. Our ship is waiting. Shall we depart?